

ABSTRACT

Kurnia Dwi Kirana (705120018)

The Description of the Resilience Single Mother in Post-Divorce Early Adulthood; Dr. Fransisca Iriani R. Dewi, M. Si.; Program S-1 study of Psychology, University of Tarumanagara, (i-xi; 84 halaman; P1-P3; L1-L18)

This research was conducted to find out the image of the single mother resilience early mature post divorce. Resilience is a person's ability to adapt in difficult conditions and rose from a negative emotional experiences. Each individual has different resilience picture after their divorce in early adulthood. In this study used the theory of Grotberg (1999), Schoon (2006), and Siebert (2005) regarding the sources, resilience protective factor and risk factor in resilience, and the individual characteristics of resilience. The process of data retrieval done through interviews in the span of time between April 2016 until November 2016. The subjects used in this research as many as three people, namely the single mother in early adulthood that adversity after the divorce. Based on the results of the research it is known that there are three subjects that have resilience source. In General, these three subjects had resilience and have a protective factor in the resilience of post divorce experienced in early adulthood.

Key words: resilience, single mother