

ABSTRACT

Nathan William Susanto (705120082)

The Relationship Between Sensation Seeking And Conformity on Teenage Bikers Racing Wildly; Dr. Fransisca Iriana Roesmala Dewi, M.Si; Linda Wati, M. Psi. Program S-1 study of psychology, the University of Tarumanagara, (i-xii; 58 pages, P1-P7, L1-L50)

Teenagers have exploratory attitude, adventurous and ambitious, and tends to be negative. One of them is the Act of driving with the motorcycle on the highway known as the wild racing. Racing wildly in the streets who adolescents do occur because of the influence of friends, or to follow the norms of social conformity that is known. The alleged behavior of wild race in order to seek pleasure or because of the encouragement of sensation seeking. The purpose of this research was to examine the relationship between sensation seeking conformity with teens wild racing riders. Respondents to the study was 100 respondents who are still active as wild racing riders. A technique for making of this sample is convenience sampling. Results of the study indicate that there is a positive and significant relationship between conformity and sensation seeking on a male wild racing motorcyclist. This means that the higher the conformity the higher sensation seeking on motorcycle racing ($r = 0460$, $p = 0000 < 0.05$). Other findings that conformity teens wild motorcycle racing because of information from a friend.

Key words: Conformity, Sensation Seeking, Racing Wildly, Teenagers