Hi Othman,

I do not know for sure if we got scammed because some authors in 2021 appear in Scopus. I do not think that the journal is being hijacked because they have announcements in response to negative issues. Here is the link: <https://journalppw.com/index.php/jpsp>

In short, I do not know the reasons for sure, but the reality is JPSP is not under Scopus coverage.

R Razifah Othman 3 weeks ago

Ohh dear..no wonder i cant find any details of my paper in scopus..this is so sad..are we being scammed? is the journal hijacked by unresponsible party?

F Frederich Oscar Lambertus Lontoh 4 weeks ago

Dear Shekhar Sawant,

Yes, I also sent that list and the link, that prove JPSP is under Scopus, to the Scopus Support Specialist. However, they said that JPSP is not active for Scopus coverage and it is the main reason my published article is not recognized at all by Scopus ID.

Can I get the link to Journal of Positive School Psychology (JPSP)

reply

Muhammad Rachmat 4 months ago<https://link.springer.com/article/10.1007/s12109-022-09907-z>

Cloned journals develop a mirror image of reputed journals and attract more articles than predatory journals. Journal of Positive School Psychology (JPSP) is one such Scopus indexed journal that has been cloned and used as a case study for this article. JPSP (cloned journal) has published over 3,000 articles in its last four issues (2nd to 5th) of 2022. Volume 6 No.2 (2022) is of 6,302 pages, Volume 6 No.3 (2022) is of 10,210 pages, Volume 6 No.4 (2022) is of 11,881 pages, and Volume 6 No.5 (2022) is of 4,335 pages. While the Society of Psychology and Education publishes the genuine JPSP journal, its cloned version is published by ASR Research India. We surveyed cloned JPSP authors worldwide, 512 to be precise, to investigate the causes and consequences of cloned journal publications. Pressure to publish articles in Scopus indexed journals, quick publication, ease in publication, and difficulty detecting a cloned journal, are some of the multiple causes that have led authors to publish in the cloned journals. It was interesting to note that despite the JPSP authors knowing that they have published in a cloned journal and its consequences, they wish to take the publication forward and earn academic credits. Suggestions have been offered to curb such publications.

reply

SCImago Team

Dear Naim,

Thank you very much for your comment.

All the metadata have been provided by Scopus /Elsevier in their last update sent to SCImago (April 2022), including the Coverage's period data. As we always say, SJR is a static image of Scopus, while Scopus is changing every day. For this reason, we always recommend our users consult the Scopus database directly to see the current index status.

Dear SJR. You are collaborating so that we as authors fall into the nets of these duplicate or predatory journal. They must present a space that at least mentions "journal under investigation" or "journal under Scopus investigation". In response to a query I made to Scopus, they mentioned that this journal is practically a predator, whose origin is from a journal already discontinued and with another name in Scopus. They themselves mention that it is a journal that is an investigator (literally). You always reply that you extract the update data from Scopus. But, if they are a bibliometric source, would it be more comfortable to indicate the category of journals investigated, albeit quantitatively, from Scopus information? They can provide that data themselves. It is not enough to add "discontinued magazine" from one moment to the next; but rather the category of "investigated journal" with negativity or positivity indices. Greetings.

reply

Melanie Ortiz 6 months ago

SCImago Team

Dear John,

Thank you for contacting us. As you perfectly said, our data come from Scopus database which sends us an updated of their data every year. SCImago doesn't include or exclude journals, as the selection is made by Scopus itself. SCImago Team is constantly working hard to provide high quality scientometric indicators in an Open Access tool, as well as several information about the journals, including the journals website information.

Unfortunately, this task becomes more and more complex as the proliferation of predatory journals and / or fraudulent websites has been constant for a few years.

SCImago always shows the metadata sent by Scopus and the most reliable information related to the website, by checking several information using Beall's list, Cabells and others.

If our website is showing "Information not localized" in the sections referred to the journal's website, it means that SCImago could not verify that information with absolute reliability; that the journal is only available in Print version; or that the website remains simply unfound.

Besides, keep in mind that the main purpose of SCImago is to help decision-making through scientometric indicators.

As a recommendation, for further information about predatory journals or publishers, you can check the links below or contact Scopus Support team, which will always inform you about the current situation of a particular journal in its database.

<https://beallslslist.weebly.com/>

<https://predatory-publishing.com/three-quick-ways-to-spot-a-predatory-journal/>

<https://www2.cabells.com/about-predatory>

Best Regards, SCImago Team

(<https://journalppw.com/index.php/jpsp>) the country is India and the publisher is Indian. Also on the website of the journal it is advertised that the journal has no APC (with no submission and processing fees) but some colleagues published in that journal and were charged from 200 to 450 $. The Journal is also publishing papers in all disciplines that are completely outside its coverage or specialization. Also on this website the publication frequency is monthly while the original journal published two or four issues per year. I suspect that there is something fishy about this journal unless the original Turkish publisher sold it to some Indian publisher as it is rumored but not confirmed???
